

Edgemoor Site Sold to Port of Wilmington

On February 27, 2017, the Port of Wilmington purchased the 112-acre Edgemoor site from Chemours for $10 million. Chemours had operated a titanium dioxide production center on the site until 2015. The Port will be seeking private investors and businesses to build a container and shipping terminal. The purchase fits into the Port's 2016 master plan for revitalizing the port and surrounding waterfront. View this March 1, 2017 article in the Delaware Business Times for more information.
